WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 13, 1899.
Gen. Otis has called the War Department for 5,000,000 rifle cartridges, which looks as if he was planning to do some fighting.
The anti-trust conference which began its deliberations in Chicago, to-day, will afford opportunity for thoughtful and earnest men to express their views on the great economic question of the day. It will also give cracks an opportunity to exploit themselves, of which they will make the most. The conference will, however, be barren of all practical results and the conference's resolutions against trusts will be just as unenforceable as they would be if directed against cyclones.
The death of Cornelius Vanderbilt is a real public loss. The possession of great wealth did not spoil him. He seemed to look upon part of his fortune as something held in trust for the benefit of his fellow men and he was primarily in his gifts to religious, educational and benevolent institutions. He gave systematically and wisely and usually without publicity. It is probable that he has by his bequested large sums to charitable and religious purposes, but even so he has not been a more than generous almoner of the wealth with which he was blessed.
President DeWitt of the International Society was not exactly somnolent, Tuesday, in the pointed reference to the claims which he made in his speech in introducing Gov. Roosevelt. He ought to have known that the claims are a subject with the Governor and that the mere mention of them has become a subject of his invariable temper that a red rub has on his nose. The drowsy drows which the President has received from Republican and Democratic newspapers, for his outbreak at Horace's speech, however, did not turn and Mr. DeWitt, and the incident, having been an extraordinary affair, need not even change him, as he did the Horace's speech with "not being quite so good."

THE "CONSOLIDER."
A New "Grafting" Who Draws Salary for Proferring Sympathy to Losers at Gambling.
The latest position of an easy nature, and within the reach of the rough-riding brigades, is known as a "consolider." The consolider's duties consist in administering to those whom the "tiger" kicks in a vicious manner, and then home in a state of mind bordering on calm complacency instead of acute remorse. The consoliders are paid a fat salary by a number of the swell uptown gambling houses. They have all the appearance of a broker or a wealthy clubman. When the player who can't afford to lose—and, by the way, there are many of them—is about to emerge from the "tiger's" lair considerably minus, is the consolider's time. Advancing his shoulder and then the victim's, he says something like this: "Now, my dear fellow, you lost only $200. Look at me! Last night I dropped $1,000, yet to-night I am as cool as ever. A mere bagatelle, don't you know. It won't hurt a man of your standing."
Of course, it's a mere bagatelle with the consolider. He didn't lose, but he invariably manages to send the victim away in such a frame of mind that he is willing to borrow, beg or steal to give the "tiger" a round the next night. The consolider has only one rival in good manners—the floorwalker in a dry goods store—but among his talent his job is what is termed an "easy graft."

COULDN'T RESIST HIS HABIT.
Congressman Cannon Lost the Floor Because He Shook His Finger.
Congressmen enjoy a joke as well as any class of men do, and the temptation to play them on fellow members is too often too great to be resisted. "One of the funniest things I ever saw in the house," said Gov. McMillan, of Tennessee, "was a verbal duel between Cox and Cannon. Cannon gesticulated almost solely with his left index finger, and the way he'll point it at an opponent in debate to emphasize a point is a caution. One day Cox said something Cannon didn't like, and Cannon said: 'Mr. Speaker, I want to interrupt the gentleman.' 'I'll let you have the floor on one condition—that you stop shaking your forefinger at me. If you don't, I might go right 'all right,' said Cannon, and with that he stuck his left hand in his trousers pocket and began to speak. Just as Cannon got warmed up he got excited at the sound of his own voice, and out came his left forefinger, and instantly he was pointing it at the speaker with deadly emphasis at Cox. 'Mr. Speaker,' said the latter, breaking into Cannon's speech, the gentleman has broken his contract, and I refuse to yield him the floor any longer.' and Cox went on in his best vein and gave Cannon a pretty lively flying. The house burst into roars, and it was a good joke for a month."

DEAF, DUMB AND AN IDIOT.
Sadly Unfortunate Condition of the Heir to the English Duke of Norfolk.
The coming of age of the earl of Arundel, son of the duke of Norfolk, the premier peer of England, is a sad episode of the year, says the New York Times. The boy is said to be idiotic and deaf and dumb. For years the father, a staunch Roman Catholic, has frequented London and other cities with his son, but in vain, and prayers have been offered for him in numerous convents and churches and votive offerings made. He has employed the best medical talent, but there seems to be no improvement in the boy's condition. He is devoted to him. The duke of Norfolk is a comparatively young man, a little over 50 years of age. He is a widower, and has never seemed to want to marry again. His brother, who was Cardinal Howard, lost his mind shortly before he died. Arundel came, in Sussex, is one of the great showhouses of England. Some years ago a rumor was started that the duke of Norfolk was paying devoted attention to Miss Virginia Macfarlane, of Baltimore. Mrs. and Miss Macfarlane have lived abroad for several years, making their winter residence in Rome, where they have become friendly with the "Blacks," or the papal adherents, which is the most exclusive in the holy city.

RULING PORTO RICO.
Cabinet Discusses Plans for Island's Welfare.
LOCAL GOVERNMENT TO BE TRIED.
The People Will Be Allowed to Administer Their Own Affairs, Subject to the Veto Power of Governor General and President.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—The cabinet meeting yesterday was occupied in the discussion of a form of civil government for Porto Rico. This matter has been under serious consideration ever since Secretary Root's plan was announced, and the indications now are that some form of local government will be decided upon and put into operation within the next few weeks at the latest.
The details of the proposed plan have not yet been made public, but it is understood that it involves the appointment of a civil governor by the president and also the appointment of the chiefs of the several great departments of the government, which would include a chief of the judicial department, a director of posts and probably two or three others.
In addition the president will appoint from the leading citizens of the island a certain number to act in a legislative capacity with the civil governor and the members of his council. These will be subject to removal and any changes that may be thought necessary in the existing laws and to suggest such others as in their judgment may be deemed best.
It is not intended that this form of government shall continue beyond the time of the next election, but it is the object of the plan to give the Porto Ricans some voice in their own government pending such action.
Although the governor general and the members of his council will exercise the powers of administration, the enforcement of any laws that may receive the approval of the president, those relating to municipal matters will be left largely in the hands of the people of Porto Rico. They will be permitted to administer their own affairs, subject always to the veto power of the governor general and finally of the president.
All of the details of the plan have not been worked out, but it is the purpose of the president to give the people of Porto Rico a chance to try to do for themselves what they have been unable to do for themselves. It is considered consistent with perfect safety to life and property.

A Rap at Atkinson.
CINCINNATI, Sept. 13.—In reply to another letter from Edward Atkinson of Boston, representative of the anti-imperialists, Congressman W. B. Shattuck of this city has written a lengthy communication refusing to accept anything in his own correspondence. The denunciation of all those who are shooting from the rear and closes thus: "The war is the people's war. They managed it, and they will stand by the administration which is endeavoring to carry out their will, that the rebellion be suppressed and order be restored in the Philippine Islands without regard to the bullets in front and the sniping snipers behind like you in the rear. Congress and not the president will at the time determine what kind of a policy shall be established in the Philippines, and I am sure that the president will definitely settle while our government is confronted by an armed force."

EASING DEATH'S TORTURES.
Dr. Dickinson Defends His Position, Already Announced.
MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Sept. 13.—This morning's Record publishes a signed statement from Dr. Jeremiah Dickinson, whose views on the right of man to die have caused such a sensation.
Dr. Dickinson, 47, in substance, that there is nothing in the published interview with him in Saturday's Record to show that the administration of chloroform to patients dying of incurable diseases tends to lessen the last few hours of life.
"By removing the agony from pain in cancer or from the struggle for breath in certain cases of heart disease or consumption I should judge it might prolong the period. But this is a point which cannot be determined by a certain number of people in a certain number of cases. I considered the duty of the physician during the last few hours of terrible suffering from incurable disease, when we can act the part of a ministering angel in the most merciful manner than by rendering the sufferer unconscious during the few hours that remain."
"My consideration was entirely confined to those cases of long continued incurable disease where there could be no possibility of a mistake and where the patient was absolutely dying in extreme agony, which the physician could not cure or relieve. While he stands by in helpless inactivity while pain and agony wring the last breath from the poor sufferer, I said no, and doubly so."
"Morphine and various anesthetics which on any critic profess to use have no effect on the pain of cancer unless a necessary fatal dose is given. The physician in such cases finds himself compelled to resort to chloroform."
In spite of all the objections hurled at me the profession has been induced in extreme cases resort to this means of relief."

RAILWAY KING DEAD
Cornelius Vanderbilt Passes Away Suddenly.
CAREER OF THE MULTIMILLIONAIRE
He was Business as a Bank Clerk and Became Head of the Great Vanderbilt System, With Reported Wealth of $200,000,000.
NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—Cornelius Vanderbilt, head of the family of railway magnates, died yesterday morning at 75, at his home at Fifth-eighth street and Fifth avenue.
His death was unexpected and came as a shock to his family and to all who knew him. He died without medical attendance and had been ill but 15 minutes before passing away. He was apparently in good health when he arrived here at 9 o'clock Monday night from Newport. He was in good spirits and remarked that he was feeling well.
Cornelius Vanderbilt, a son of William H. the first, was born in New Dorp, Staten Island, on Nov. 27, 1843. His grandfather was Cornelius J., the founder of the family. The young Cornelius went through the common schools and then entered a bank, not as president or ornamental director, but as a plain clerk at plain clerk's salary. In the Shoe and Leather bank Cornelius the second began his life work.
At 23 Cornelius Vanderbilt married. His wife was Alice Gwynne, the daughter of a Cincinnati lawyer. He was already a member of the Episcopal church, a leader in Sunday schools and a member of the Young Men's Christian association. Children came into his home at intervals of two years until they numbered five, one girl, Gertrude, and four boys. The eldest, William H., Jr., died at Yale; the others survive.
Cornelius was 34 when the commodore died. William H., Jr., succeeded to the presidency of the Harlem road and of the New York Central, his eldest son to the others survive.

CORNELIUS VANDERBILT.
vice president of both roads. He had already very nearly a score of years of hard business experience to his credit. Without a tremor he assumed the management of these vast properties.
When William H. Vanderbilt withdrew from the presidency and created the board of directors, which he himself controlled, of the reorganized system, young Cornelius was made chairman of the board of control of the New York Central, Lake Shore and Michigan Central roads.
The means that he was the central figure of these properties. He had at that time a salary of $50,000 a year, but an extravagant spend for a railroad president. The commodore had given him a home when he married and some stocks and bonds worth about $100,000 a year.
At his grandfather's death Cornelius reaped the first fruits of his high favor with the older Cornelius. While the other sons of William H. received $200,000 each, he got $500,000. Besides, at a call he had specified both wisely and well, and men in the street and that the favorite grandson of Commodore Vanderbilt was worth $100,000,000.
Mr. Vanderbilt inherited from his father $250,000,000. His wealth increased greatly every year and now he is estimated at not less than $100,000,000. It is now believed to be nearly $200,000,000.
In 1881 he built the magnificent house which he occupied at Fifth avenue and Fifth-seventh street, at a cost, it is said, of $1,000,000. He also owned the fine place at Newport known as "The Breakers," which he bought for $1,000,000 in 1884.
He was alive also to the interests of art, science, benevolence and education. He was a trustee and chairman of the executive committee of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, a trustee of the Museum of Natural History and a trustee of Columbia college. A number of years ago he erected Vanderbilt hall for Yale university, as a memorial of his eldest son, William H. Vanderbilt, who died while a student in his junior year.
